Apartment housed within a pre-war house in Dedinje, located in a busy street near the Museum of Yugoslavia. Great location, easily accessible from different parts of the city. The house is located on a large plot of land, while three acres in front of the house belongs to this apartment, which occupies the entire second floor and has slight ceiling slants on individual parts, which doesn't affect the functionality of space. It consists of a spacious living room with a fireplace, kitchen, two rooms with pantries and bathrooms, and an additional room without a private bathroom. There is also a guest toilet at disposal. Kitchen area is spacious, without kitchen elements, and can serve as an extra office in case the apartment is rented for business purpose. One terrace has fitted kitchen elements with a sink. The interior is very bright, well maintained, painted, with new lighting. The space itself can be adapted for different purposes by adding additional partitions or similar adaptations that do not disturb the original structure of the space. There is one garage space available in the garage. This property is suitable for various business activities.
